Relying on Christ's own words, the Catholic Church has always held that the bread and wine brought to the priest in the offertory procession are changed into Christ's body and blood "by the action of Christ and the power of the Holy Spirit" when, at the consecration of the Mass, an ordained priest says over them the words Jesus said: "This is my body.... This is my blood."

33th Sunday of the ordinary time cycle B

November 17, 2024

Confiado en las palabras del mismo Cristo, la Iglesia Catolica siempre a sostendo que el pan y el vino llevados al sacerdote durante la procesion del ofertorio se transforman en el cuerpo y la Sangre de Cristo por la accion de Jesuscristo y poder del Espiritu Santo, cuando el sacerdote durante la consagracion pronuncia las palabras mismas de Cristo "esto es mi cuerpo ...Esta es mi sangre".

Dedication of the Basilica of Saint Peter

After Emperor Constantine the Great legalized Christianity in the Roman Empire in 313, he began to construct churches, particularly in Rome, Jerusalem, and Constantinople. In Rome, he constructed four basilicas: Saint John Lateran, Saint Peter's on Vatican Hill, Holy Cross of Jerusalem, and Saint Paul Outside the Walls. Today, the Church celebrates the dedication of two of those basilicas: Saint Peter's on Vatican Hill and Saint Paul Outside the Walls.

After Constantine legalized Christianity, he became aware of the reverence with which this Prince of the Apostles' grave was held, so he constructed what is now referred to as Old Saint Peter's Basilica to help foster devotion and encourage pilgrimages to the site. The first basilica was dedicated by Pope Sylvester around the year 324 or 326 and remained for more than a millenia, with additions and reconstructions taking place during that time.

Thirty-third Sunday in Ordinary Time – November 17, 2024

In reflecting on today's readings, we are invited to enter into the profound mystery of eschatology — the study of the "last things" — through the dramatic revelation of Christ. Both the first reading and the Gospel point to the end times, yet not as mere events to be feared, but as the unfolding of God's redemptive love and His ultimate triumph over death and evil.

In Daniel, we encounter an apocalyptic vision, foretelling a time of great distress, but also of hope. The passage speaks of a future resurrection, where the dead will rise — some to everlasting life, and others to shame and contempt. For those who remain faithful, their destiny is to "shine like the brightness of the sky" and "like stars forever."

In Mark's Gospel, we hear Jesus describe the cosmic signs of the end times — the darkening of the sun, the falling of the stars, and the coming of the Son of Man with great power and glory. While this can seem frightening, this passage is not a cause for fear, but as a profound unveiling of the truth of Christ's sovereignty.

Christian eschatology sees the Lord Jesus as the center of all time and history. The coming of the Son of Man is the climax of God's plan, where the mystery of redemption reaches its fulfillment. Jesus speaks of the cosmic signs as a kind of apocalypse — a revealing or unveiling of God's ultimate victory over evil. The cross is already the beginning of this victory, and the second coming of Christ is its final manifestation. The imagery of stars falling and the heavens being shaken can be understood as symbolic of the overturning of worldly powers and the establishment of Christ's reign.

The mystery of the Cross is the key to understanding the end of history. The final victory of Christ over all powers and principalities was already achieved in His Passion and Resurrection. Therefore, the cosmic signs of the end times must be interpreted through the lens of the Cross. The darkness, the shaking of the heavens, the falling of the stars — all these can be seen as reflections of the cosmic significance of Christ's death and resurrection.

Our task is to remain vigilant, rooted in love, and confident in the enduring promise of Christ, whose words will never pass away. Maranatha! Come, Lord Jesus!
