REFLECTION BY: CATHOLICS EDUCATION HUB

As I prepare to pray, I relax and place myself in God's hands, asking the Holy Spirit to guide me during this time. When I'm ready, I read the text slowly. Perhaps this is a story familiar from childhood. I try to look at it afresh, seeing God create humanity and all the animals from the soil of the earth. What strikes me anew? I see Adam naming all created things. Perhaps humanity has a role in creation. What do I think this is?

The Lord creates woman so that man may not be alone. At last he has a companion equal to him. How do I react to Adam's response? I speak to the Lord of this. Man and woman are joined and become one. I pray with gratitude as I ponder this great gift of human love in marriage. I consider too the part that humanity plays in creation.

I speak to the Lord, perhaps to ask that I may have reverence towards his creation, and always treat others with dignity. I finish my prayer with a 'Glory be'. I come to my place of prayer and settle into stillness. I note how I feel and hand everything over to God. I then read the Gospel text slowly. I consider Jesus's attitude: perhaps his patience, his firmness or his understanding . . . Does his audience want to listen? Am I like this sometimes, asking a question and not really attending to the answer? This is a challenging Gospel. What feelings arise in me? Do I think of myself or others? I speak frankly to the Lord.

I then see Jesus with the children. What do I feel now? Perhaps I can turn to him as a child, with openness and trust, and allow him to embrace me. As I ask him to bless me, what do I especially wish to confide in him? I end my time of prayer with gratitude, thanking the Lord for his infinite love for all of us.
